Subject: The Marina is empty since everyone got kicked out, and haven't dredged the slips for over a decade

I'd be surprised if any boats would ever be allowed back in, and seeing that by the time the additional 10 (!) multi-storey buildings are up in that tiny space in front of it the masts would blow off seeing how the current ones have already turned the wind there into an ongoing gale that has also even been ripping out docks across the street at Oyster Point Marina where the buildings are.

Kilroy has lied from the start about its intentions, not just to us people who formerly lived there (myself 16 years), but to the public in general, attempting to present themselves as environmentally and people friendly which is a huge pack of LIES.

Devious backhanded white collar criminals as soon as you do some research and get past that ultra thin veneer.

Letting them get away with even more damage then they've already done to the place does ultimately mean complying with their evil ways. I would strongly suggest turning down this proposal. And really take a good look at what their buildings so far have already been doing to Oyster Point. It's becoming a more and more inhabitable place to be, let alone live.

And I haven't even mentioned the bottleneck inevitable traffic jam situations they've been causing. Extremely bad idea.

have you been down there to see their buildings?!

Have you ever talked to any of the OPM people about everything that's changed for the worse since they started building?! Before you give them permission to make it even worse you must do some serious research into the real consequences!!
